It is known to every one, that the chief source of sustaining a newspaper is not the magnitude of its subscription list, so much as the advertising patronage which may be bestowed upon it. In large commercial cities, indeed, the latter is usually tile concomitant of the former, as it becomes the obvious interest of mercantile men to advertise in those papers which are the most extensively circulated. Washington, however is differently situated.

Deprived of the advertising patronage incident to a mercantile community, and burdened with peculiar and enormous expenses which are not elsewhere incurred, nothing but a very long list believed, ever before attempted on this continent in a daily news paper, they have secured the services of the best reporters which the country afforded, but at the enormous cost of $12,000 to $15,000 per year. Their extensive foreign and domestic corres-justify almost any outlay to attain it. Still, it must be evident that
